

WALLACE MILLS AT EXPOSITION

JANESVILLE STUDENT VIVIDLY DESCRIBES SEATTLE FAIR.

SPIRIT OF THE NORTHWEST

Is Revealed by Grandeur of Scenic Setting—No Plaster Cupids Nor Potted Trees.

Wallace C. Mills, son of Dr. and Mrs. James Mills, has written for the Gazette a remarkably vivid and entertaining description of the Seattle exposition. He unfolds the picture of mammoth trees, mountain scenery, bridges the most salient features to the foreground in a manner calculated to give the casual reader a very comprehensive idea of the "big show." Mr. Mills visited Seattle recently while en route for Palo Alto, Cal., where he is pursuing a course of study in the engineering department of Leland Stanford university. The full text of his account is as follows:

"To the crowds who daily throng Seattle, the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition presents an attractive panorama. Approaching from the city, the white palaces gleaming in the sun first attract the attention and then a more comprehensive view reveals the distinguishing features of the fair. It is not the buildings, for they are comparatively small. But it is the background of rugged mountains, the still blue lakes spreading on either side of the grounds, and tall evergreens which form the artistic setting for the ivory-tinted buildings. A majestic in the strength and majesty in everlasting snow, the lordly Mt. Rainier dominates over all.

"The entrance to the fair is as picturesque as its surroundings. Its Alaskan totem poles, typifying the spirit of the exposition, tower in a beautiful view. Looking up the gently sloping avenue of Shasta dales and stately pines is seen the so-called Court of Honor—the focal point of the exposition. Around it are arranged in a semi-circle the splendid structures erected by the government, and near by are foreign palaces and other exhibit buildings. The great dome of the federal building on the crest of the hill beyond the plaza is the architectural climax of the fair. In the foreground, cascades are plunging into circular pools where a gigantic geyser playfully throws its crystal sprays high into the air. The imposing shaft arrayed in pure gold from the Alaskan fields rises out of the center of the Court of Honor and completes the decorative scheme.

"In general, the buildings are more elaborate than the exhibits. The most complete displays are of the Pacific northwest.

"The Alaska building is a revelation. In its center is a strong iron cage displaying a priceless collection of nuggets and gold bricks. Drawings on the walls depict the scenic beauties of the land—Gullies, vegetables and flowers scattered about the room show that all Alaska has not as severe a climate as is generally supposed. Specimens of rich copper ore manifest a source of wealth. Other features of the exhibit are a curious collection of birds, interesting specimens of Indian basketwork and carvings.

"In contrast to the Alaska building is the brightly colored structure representing the quaint architecture of the Japanese people. Here the little slant-eyed gentlemen of Tokio are bowing and explaining politely the mysteries of chop suey, satsuma and other wares.

"But the marvel of the exposition is its forestry building. Its whole front is a colonnade of huge fir logs in each of which there is enough lumber, it is said, to build a five-room bungalow. These logs were not especially selected to display their enormous size; they are just specimens of the full grown Washington fir. This is evidenced by the towering pines and cedars growing about the building. Nearby is a sample of the prodigious—it is a part of a California redwood tree, which lies flat on the ground with the wood removed. The bark forms a hollow chamber which is used as a card receptacle, but the man who plus his card at the top must be a giant.

"Facing the court with the forestry building are palaces containing country and state exhibits. Of these the California building is in favor. It houses a tempting display of fruit and vegetables. Here you can see the foreman of walnuts, and houses of oranges are among its numerous attractive exhibits.

"The illumination of the plaza in the evening is magnificent. Then every office is thrown out in brilliant outline. The splashing waters of the cascades illumined from below at each terrace become a varicolored blaze of dazzling light, now fading, then brightening. Like a mirror of the fair the glassy surface of the Dyer-Bauer reflects and reflects the splendor of the exposition. The golden columns of Alaska enthroning the resplendent American eagle casts its glowing rays over the shimmering spread of Lake Union to focus in the twinkling lights of Seattle and the heavens. Softly, with the evening breeze come the inspiring strains of American national hymns.

"There in the temple of music the older people who do not care for the attractions like the 'beagle railway' and 'house upside down' of the 'Pay Streak' are quietly enjoying themselves in this Eden of the state of Washington.

"To compare the fair with that of St. Louis would be a manifest absurdity. The exposition is not 'stupendous' but 'artistic.' Its setting is beautiful and a part of the surrounding country. In spirit, it is preeminently western—no Plaster of Paris cupids or potted orange trees to embellish the grounds, but totem poles and giant pines. It is full of contrasts, surprises, and instruction—an exposition of the little known. Every visitor becomes enthralled in the revelation of the resources and wonderful possibilities of Alaska, Yukon, and the Pacific.

Carpenter Foreman Tom Rendon has just finished roofing the freight depot with two-ply Merold patent roofing and the house presents a very creditable appearance. Each side of the roof is 210 by 218 feet, and 11,760 square feet of roofing was required for the work.

Engineer Crowley and Foreman Dawson took engine 1357 light and a Wisconsin Division crew to Fond du Lac last night to get a train of three freight. Engineer Crowley double-headed home this morning and went on the board.

Engineer Dudley and Foreman Coen went south on an extra to Chicago yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock on account of pool crews resting.

Foreman Urban is working in the south end pool with Engineer Miller on account of the sickness of the regular foreman.

Engineer J. M. Smith reported for work on 558 this morning.

Engineer Starritt is relieving R. J. Lewis on 534 and 541.

R. K. Smith is driving 534 and 541 while the job is bulletined for application.

Switchman Ed. Blor relieved Roy Horn last night.

Engineers Squires and Leight double-headed an extra from Harbison this morning with engines 167 and 1219.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul. Foreman Kennaugh went back on the dog-run last night.

Engineer Meyer and Foreman Seitz took 105 out this morning.

Engineer Smith and Foreman Duxstad are on the 1044 today.

Foreman Mahoney is on the three spot today with Engineer James.

Engineer Allen and Foreman McAllister double-headed Engineer Tuttle out on 320 this morning with engine 506.

Switchman McCarthy is relieving Flood on the night switch engine. M. Connell is taking McCarthy's place.

Engineer Schleker and Foreman Harker went out on 91 this morning.

Engineer Webber returned to work on the switch engine last night.

Mrs. Della Thompson Lutes, head of the American Motherhood Magazine and active in the cause of social purity.

Mrs. Della Thompson Lutes has devoted the recent years of her life to social purity problems and has accomplished a remarkable work. She is deeply interested in the movement in behalf of social purity, and especially that phase of it which insists that children shall have all proper knowledge relative to self and sex. She is to be one of the principal speakers before the National Purity congress, which convenes in Burlington, Iowa, in October. This will be a most remarkable gathering of reformers, religious and social workers from all sections of America. The congress is held each year under the auspices of the National Purity Federation, of which H. S. Standwell, La Crosse, Wis., is president and Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver is vice president.

Mrs. Lutes was born in Jackson county, Mich., of farmer parents and grew up in the country. She was educated in the schools of her native state and later engaged in teaching. In 1893 she was married to Lewis Irving Lutes. After her marriage and the birth of two children, Mrs. Lutes became intensely interested in the duty of child development, wrote for Mother's Magazine and led in the Mothers' club movement in Detroit. She is the author of several books and her name is known as a fiction writer in the leading monthly periodicals.

At the failure of Dr. Mary Wood Allen's health and her subsequent death, Mrs. Lutes was called to Cooperstown, N. Y., in 1907, to assume the editorial position of American Motherhood, where, through the steady growth and improvement of that magazine, she has demonstrated her ability in the journalistic field. She is the mother of three children, but one of which is living, Robert, aged 12. Mr. Lutes is engaged in business in a city near Cooperstown.

MANY CHANGES IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

TEN VACANCIES IN TEACHING FORCE OF SCHOOLS.

FOUR NEW INSTRUCTORS

At the High School And Six Others Have Been Hired to Fill Positions in Graded Schools and Kindergartens.

When the school children go to their classes on Tuesday next a number of the teachers who taught last year will be missing from the roster of instructors in the public schools. Four of these changes occur in the high school, five in the kindergartens, and four others in the graded schools of the city. Some of the teachers have been transferred from one school to another.

At the high school, Miss Paulson, who has served faithfully as algebra teacher for the past twenty years, will be greatly missed by the pupils. In her place will be Miss Nellie Miller, a splendid teacher, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, and formerly instructor in high schools at Eau Claire and Monroe.

Miss Edith E. Bowen, a university graduate, who has taught at Whitewater, West De Pere, and Dodgeville, will take Miss Wiggin's place in the English work.

In place of Miss Foley, who will teach this year at a high school near Chicago, Theodore Knudson, of Beloit college will take charge of history and English.

Professor William Vlyman will not return to meet his Latin and Greek classes when school opens, and Wesley Ayer of Beloit has been secured as a substitute until Mr. Vlyman comes in October.

Kindergartens.

The kindergarten teacher at the Webster school, Miss Callahan, has resigned to go west, and her assistant, Miss Alice Ludden, has also given up the work to continue her duties with the Parlor Den company. Miss Callahan's position will be filled by Miss Winifred Elford, who has been assistant at the Washington school. Miss Elford Elford will act as her assistant. At the Adams school, Miss Agnes Buckmaster will substitute for her sister, Miss Ada Buckmaster, who will remain in the east until October 1, to study in New York City. The vacancy caused at the Jefferson school by the resignation of Miss Josephine Treat will be filled by Miss Daisy McLean. To succeed Miss Winifred Elford, promoted to the directorship of the Webster school kindergarten, Miss Wilma Jones has been appointed at the Washington school as assistant.

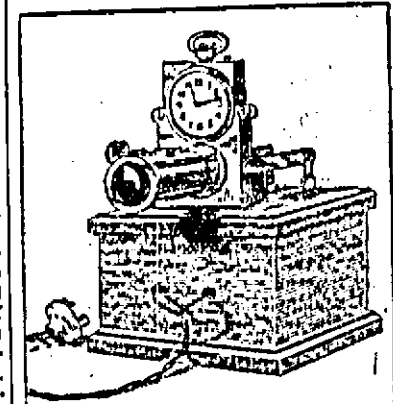

Graded Schools. A graduate of Whitewater Normal, Miss Helen Hahn, has been hired by the Board of Education to take the place of Miss Alice Youngclaus in the fourth grade. In place of the grade for boys conducted by Professor Claude Stout, last year, the seventh grade will be resumed by Miss Mary Doherty in charge. Miss May Hayes will succeed Miss Matilda Bailey as teacher of the seventh grade of the Garfield school, and Miss Helen Jolley has been transferred from the Adams school to take the place of Miss Mary Doherty in the third and fourth grades at the Grant school.

Superintendent Small will hold a general grade and kindergarten teachers' meeting at the high school building at four o'clock Monday, September 6, to outline the general plans for the work of the opening term.

TIMEPIECE FOR EX-PRESIDENT

Unique Electrical Contrivance to Be Presented to Theodore Roosevelt on Return Home.

When Theodore Roosevelt returns from his African hunting trip he will find awaiting him a "shadow" clock, the second of its kind in existence. The gift will be received from its inventor, an Australian, who wishes to pay his respects to the ex-president because of the visit of the world-famous hunter to Australia.

Ingenious Clock for Ex-President.

The clock is made with two dials one for day use and one for night, says Popular Mechanics. The night dial is transparent, with lenses above it, and a small electric lamp underneath. When the power of the clock retires for the night, he turns the night dial toward the ceiling. Attached to the side of his head is an electric push-button, connected with the lamp by a flexible cord. By pressing this button at any time during the night, the lamp is turned on, and the outlines of the numerals on the dial are thrown against the ceiling. The shadow of the dial is four or five feet in diameter, making the numerals easy to read.

Photographs of Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt will be placed on both dials, the front of the case will be decorated with crossed American and Australian flags, and the sides will bear reproductions of the Australian coat of arms.

A Ship's Medicine Chest.

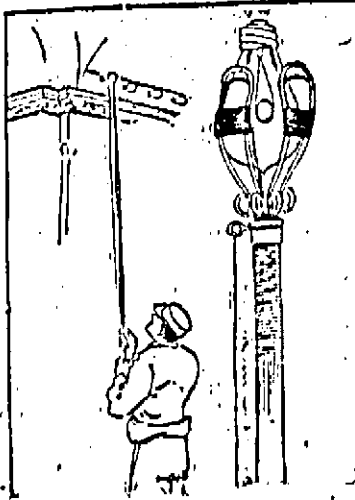

An old ship captain said he sailed all around the world some 15 times and the only medicine he allowed aboard were "castor oil" and "whipped cream." If they were sick below the belt castor oil did the work; if above, the cream was sure to do the trick.—New York Press.

THE ELECTRICAL WORLD

TO REMOVE GLOBES EASILY.

Incandescent Lamps in Inaccessible Places Replaced Without Much Trouble.

Incandescent lamps are often located in almost inaccessible places, as in high ceilings, domes, etc. Obviously, when the lamps are burned out, they must be replaced by new lamps. They also require cleaning at stated intervals. In both operations, it is necessary to employ some device by which they can be quickly removed from the sockets and replaced. A simple contrivance for accomplishing this has recently been patented by a New York man. As shown in the illustration it consists of wire jaws protected by rubber or like substance, which fit over the bulbs. The jaws are attached to a long pole, so that the operator can reach the lamp from a considerable distance. A flexible member holds the jaws to the pole, which can be pulled over by a cord. With this arrangement lamps at right angles to the pole can be uncrowded as readily as those directly above.

Lamps Easily Replaced.

REGULATE CLOCK BY WAVES.

Timepieces of Great Cities to Be Set by Electrical Currents and Kept in Time.

To set the clocks of a big city by electrical waves and keep them uniform in time—this is the latest facility afforded to municipalities by a magician in the science of Marconis. The inventor is a Viennese and his name is Franz Morawetz. He has been experimenting for some years, but it is only within recent days that he has thoroughly perfected his invention. At first it was found that atmospheric upheavals and other disturbing factors rendered his process futile when at every moment in the day the receiving clock operated on by the transmitter was attuned to the action of the latter, the result being that high winds and great disturbances of the air upset the proper action and course of the electric waves.

In the case of the present contrivance, the objective clock is isolated during fifty-nine seconds in each minute, in which time it is insensible to all emission of electrical currents. In the sixtieth second, however, the receiving apparatus, hitherto idle, is automatically brought into circuit with the transmitter. No two clocks travel at precisely the same speed, and since there must be a divergence from a given standard, the waves directed from the transmitter of the central clock—the standard time—proceed to adjust the objective time-teller to the standard of "headquarters," or the exact sun time.

The Electro-Technical Institute of Vienna has adopted this method of looking after the clocks of the Austrian capital. Indeed, the municipal council votes a yearly subvention of about $1,000 for the upkeep of the "central post," which radiates waves to a distance of nearly a mile in all directions over the city. The inventor holds, however, that his process could keep the clocks of a whole province in order.

Home-Made Barometers.

There are many devices by means of which changes in the moisture of the air may be shown, some of them exceedingly easy to arrange. Perhaps the simplest form of all, known to every housewife in the coast towns, is the suspended piece of seaweed. Any kind answers the purpose admirably. A small bunch tied together and hung up on a wall shows the excessive humidity in the atmosphere, which often precedes rain, by becoming damp and flabby. A very ingenious contrivance is the old-fashioned "weather house," largely made in Switzerland. It is arranged in such a way that two figures act in response to the twisting of a piece of catgut. The material, supported by a wire, controls the movements of a little platform on either end of which is placed a model. Excessive moisture in the air causes the catgut to twist and turn the platform round, so that the man emerges from one of the doors in the front of the house. Reverse conditions of the atmosphere bring about the contraction of the catgut, and the platform swings back, thus bringing the figure of the woman into prominence at her particular door.

E. H. HARRIMAN.

The rise of Edward Henry Harriman from a broker's clerk at the age of 14 years to the virtual commander of American transportation needs no comment. From boyhood he has done things. A man of action who accomplished the impossible. Harriman was born at Hampstead, N. Y., Feb. 25, 1848. His father was a preacher and of small means. He completed a common school education at the age of 14 and went to work on Wall street where he has been continually for nearly half a century. As a clerk in a brokerage house he did his work well, but this was not satisfied to work for others, he must be at the head. With this in mind he established himself as a stock broker and in 1870 was made a member of the New York stock exchange. Harriman's greatest light has been to convince the men of Wall street and the public at large that he is not a mere broker, but constructive railroad man. It took him seven long years to do this after he gained prominence at the head of various railroad lines, but now he is firmly established as a railroad genius. He is not a plunger as are many Wall-street financiers. He is rather a maker and consolidator of railroad systems. He is now in command of over 50,000 miles of transportation lines, which include many of the most prominent and well known transcontinental systems.

Recently Scientists Have Advocated a Theory of Mono-diet

Claiming that it is easier to digest one kind of food and with better results than a mixture of many kinds of food. Investigations proved that the one perfect mono-diet is because it contained all the necessary ingredients to maintain life. It's a fact that the American people do not drink enough milk. Everybody should drink a full quart of milk a day, in one form or another, and in Janesville Pasteurized Milk is not equaled.

There is no milkman in or near Janesville that has the facilities for cleanliness that we have. Cleanliness and purity is our greatest consideration. Our modern milk depot is equipped with a pasteurization plant. Our bottles are not only washed clean, but are sterilized with live steam before being filled. Not only this, but every machine, every implement in our depot is sterilized every day, even the cement floors.

Others may pasteurize (commercially) to keep the milk from souring during warm weather, but we pasteurize for purity all the year round. There is all the difference in the world in the methods.

Our milk is rich—twenty-five per cent richer than the legal standard. It is tested every day so as to give you uniformity of richness.

Our cream is very rich—almost twice as rich as the legal standard provides. It is always rich enough to whip if kept in a cool place.

FOR BABIES our pasteurized milk is an absolute necessity. In the past, impure and unpasteurized milk has slain regiments of infants by means of the millions and millions of bacteria which are permitted to remain in the milk despite their known presence.

It is excellent for people with weak stomachs. Being absolutely pure, free from live germs of any kind and delivered in sterilized bottles, sealed with antiseptic stoppers, practically airtight, there is no possibility for impurities of any kind.

Our pasteurized milk costs no more than raw milk, yet it could not be made any purer, if it cost four times as much.

The milk is FRESH—it's CLEAN—it's SWEET AS THE PASTURE LANDS THEMSELVES.

Try a bowl of milk and crackers for lunch, and drink a glass of milk at dinner-time.

YOU WILL FEEL THE BETTER FOR IT.

Every day our wagon passes your door. It's an easy matter to get the best milk and cream. Just hail the man.

We have gone to a great expense to give you better service. You can gain by taking advantage of it without any additional cost. Do it now, while you have it in mind.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

The good-natured Gazette contest, which has been going on for the past two months, closes tonight and a dozen tired contestants will be made happy as prize-winners, while several times that number will turn away disappointed.

The work done for the paper is fully appreciated by the management and the only cause for regret is found in the fact that every girl who has put heart in the effort can not be rewarded by some substantial prize.

Perhaps there is not much comfort in the thought, but it is worth something for a girl to know her capabilities, and a spirited contest, like the one in which they have been engaged, stirs up latent energy and develops ability which in the end may prove of greater value than a diamond or platinum.

The newspaper field is a many-sided field and no particular channel contributes so largely to its success as the circulation department. The two hundred odd girls who have been working for themselves and for prizes, have gained some valuable experience, which may result in directing some of them into a field of work which is never crowded.

Every enterprising newspaper in the land employs circulators and bright, intelligent girls are well adapted to the work. The prizes gained are more substantial than pawns, for they read self-support and a competency and that means independence.

The country is full of girls who are asking themselves the sober question, "What can I do to earn an honest living?" Of course they all hope to marry some day and have a home of their own, but while they are on the waiting list the question of self-support is often perplexing.

They might teach school, but aside from the gentility end of it, that's worse than being a maid in some good home.

The stenographic field is already over-crowded, and like other occupations with a fixed income the future outlook is not very promising.

The circulator, who can conduct a campaign for a newspaper and show results, is on the highway to success. If the contest just closed produces any girls of this class the prizes for which they worked so faithfully will seem insignificant.

Mr. Fisher of the town of Center, the gentleman who won the foreign trip in the last contest, returned last week, and is very enthusiastic.

He says that when the steamer sailed from Montreal the names of fifty-three girls were on the passenger list, all prize-winners for a dozen papers in as many states.

In Paris they met two or three other excursions of the same class, and Mr. Fisher was about the only man in the party.

This would indicate that while Rock county has its full quota of popular girls, that other parts of the country are also well favored.

Those girls were all prize-winners in contests similar to the one just closed—no brighter than the little army of defeated candidates who competed with them, but simply more fortunate.

The girls elected to stay at home represented a much larger class than those who went abroad, but this is true of all contests, and yet the experience is worth the effort for every contestant.

It stimulates ambition, quickens energy, and develops confidence and self-reliance, in ways which are helpful to every girl who stands at the threshold of life gazing wistfully into the uncertain future.

The prizes of life are rarely confined to a sixty-day contest. Many of them are overlooked through neglect and indifference, but the pathway is lined with them.

The notion is popular among young people that money represents the choicest prize, and that inherited wealth, and a life of ease is to be envied. But money which comes without effort and sacrifice is seldom appreciated, and more often proves a curse than a blessing.

The ability to earn a living, and the disposition to do it, is a better inheritance than money, and the girl or boy who enters active life thus equipped is more to be envied than the other class.

The Gazette desires to thank every girl who has represented the paper in the circulating department during the contest. The list includes 175 active workers, who have shown ability to do things when occasion demands. There is to the hope that every one of them wear a diamond ring, have a home of her own and a piano, before the decade is half spent.

If some good young man looking for a wife will call at the office he will find a good list to select from, and many of the disappointed contestants may win a prize that will make the winners green with envy.

If so, read this:

Leo Gossett, a young farmer, lives near Orem, Ill. He is a good citizen who pays his debts and his taxes, keeps up his fences, helps to support the church and loves his old mother. Ordinarily by the 1st of May Leo Gossett has all his plowing and some of his seedling done, but this year when May day arrived the cornfield had been untouched.

Gossett's old mother was seriously ill, and he scarcely dared to leave the house. While she lay at death's door he could do nothing, and it looked as if the cornfield would lie idle for a year. You see, Leo Gossett thought more of his mother than of his crop.

Gossett's neighbors got together. They didn't ask "Who is my neighbor?" Gossett was their neighbor and a good one.

So one the morning early in May a cavalcade came down the road. In the procession were thirty-one neighbors, thirty-one breaking plows and 131 plow horses.

Neighbor No. 1 started a "land," and neighbor Nos. 2 and 3 and 4, and so on, followed right in after. In less than half a day, from 5 a. m. to 11 a. m., the field was finished.

And then one neighbor went to the house and told Leo Gossett that if his mother did not get better in a few days they would all come back and harrow and plant the cornfield.

So, you see, there were at least thirty-one good Samaritans within a few miles of circumstances of Orem, Ill.

"Oh, yes," says some one, "brotherly love abides in God's free fields, but in the city—"

"In the harsh city, with its cruel jaws thirsting for the juice of men; in the city, with its insensate rollers crushing out not only flesh and blood, but mind and soul and spirit—in the city there is no such brotherly love."

Don't you believe it.

Let an accident happen in the streets of any city and note the quick response of willing hearts and hands.

Why, in the city of Chicago just the other day, when the horses attached to an ambulance were killed, twenty men took hold of a rope and raced half a mile to a hospital to save a man who was bleeding to death.

Make no mistake.

The heart of humanity is wondrous kind.

UNCLE WALT THE POET PHILOSOPHER

By WALT MASON

(Copyright, 1909, by George Mathew Adams.)

When an old man, tired of the long, long road, and weeps like a housewife, when he says he's sick of the heavy load, AND AGE then the most of the boys can sympathize; they know how an old man feels; and they brush the tears from his streaming eyes, and stoke him with sundry wheels. When a young man gives of his griefs and cares a wearisome catalogue, when he rails at fortune, and rants and swears, then I always call the dog. Oh, an old man's grief is a solemn thing, and I pity his drooping head; for an old man's hopes have all taken wing, and an old man's dreams are dead. But a young man's mourning and tears—see what a shameful and weak, in truth; for the greatest gift of the gods is his—the glorious boon of youth!

LATEST PICTURE OF THE PATHETIC FIGURE ON THE PERSIAN THRONE.

Sultan Ahmed Mirza, the 11-year-old boy, who recently has been made shah of Persia and who according to the dispatches is so sick of his new honors that he recently tried to commit suicide, is the son of Mohammed Ali, the deposed shah, Mohammed Ali had been on the throne since January, 1907, and was opposed by the Constitutional party. The new shah, who was bitterly when, at the time of his coronation, he was separated from his father and mother, to make his way alone and in state, to the throne. He may soon be required to abdicate it is said.

CREATES WORLD'S RECORD WHEN 13 YEARS OLD—COUNTRY JAY.

Thirteen years old and the winner of a world's championship. This was the performance of Country Jay when he was sent a mile under saddle in 2:04.2, at Cleveland last Friday.

Country Jay is one of the sensations of the year. Stabled four years ago after a good campaign for the big prize, he has made good from the jump, winning consistently each time out. Horsemen had all their hope upset by his work and Country Jay will go down in history as one of the greatest of trotters.

HENRY C. FRICK AND HIS MAGNIFICENT SUMMER HOME.

Beverly, Mass.—Henry C. Frick, the Pittsburgh millionaire, has discovered there are some things in this world that money will not buy.

Just outside of Prindle's Crossing, near here, is "Flag Rock," the magnificent country place of Mr. Frick. It covers about fifty acres but it does not lie in the shape. The strip belongs to two elderly ladies of gentle birth, the Misses Lordings. New Frick believes that "Prindle's Crossing" is rightly named, for he has been unable to purchase this strip of land from the ladies for any price whatsoever. He approached the ladies through his agents before he located his estate. They did not care to sell, but, regardless of this, Mr. Frick made his plans as though this property were his own, for he eventually expected to buy it at some price.

But now he has found there is no price on the property. Through his agents he offered a liberal price for this water frontage and this week personally offered the owners $1,000,000 for the property, which could not be worth anything like the amount. But the ladies simply told him they would not know what to do with the money if they had it. They are perfectly happy in their home, which has been in their family for years, and have no intention whatever of selling. The multi-millionaire, who had never met a condition in life, where money was so little prized, was truly mystified. Mr. Frick's home is a brick and marble palace, the grandeur of whose architecture is not exceeded in America.

THE GAZETTE'S CONTEST CLOSSES AT 9 O'CLOCK TONIGHT

The Battle of Ballots Will Wage Throughout All Districts. Indications Point to a Furious Finish and New Subscribers Will Pay an Important Part in Deciding Who Will Be Winners--Candidates Line Up Their Forces To Close Campaign.

Claims and Counter Claims of Contestants and Their Friends Indicate That Outcome Is Everywhere In Doubt.

PUBLIC INTEREST IS NOW AT HIGH PITCH

Gazette Plans To Take Care Of The Crowd at the Finish Tonight.

With but a few hours before the great Gazette contest will be at a close, the interest is intense, and all of the candidates and their friends are anxiously awaiting the end of the big battle of votes. Almost all are confident of victory, and those who are now ahead are sure of winning to the front at the window by virtue of the reserve votes which they have up their sleeves.

The great contest has now come to a question of hours, and only a few of them remain. The great, good-natured battle of votes has wrought up more interest than any other contest, for more than one hundred people are interested in the outcome, and from the fact that votes and subscriptions have come in from hundreds of miles around is evidence that the contest is not confined to the immediate vicinity of Janesville.

The contest has, indeed, been an exciting one, and the real tug of war is yet to come. This will be enacted this evening, and every man, woman and child in Janesville and the surrounding country will wait the result expectantly.

About Getting the Vote In.

Every facility will be afforded the contestants for getting their votes in. The Gazette office, experience teaches that there will be a crowd about the office when the close of the polls approaches. In spite of all the warnings that have been given, it is sure that some of the candidates will put off getting their votes in until the last possible moment, but the contest manager would again warn them that the last possible minute ought to mean a time which permits some leeway for accidents.

Votes will be received in the circulation department until the hour of nine. There will be no difficulty in receiving votes that are brought in at any reasonable time, but it must be borne in mind that there will be a crowd about the Gazette lobby at the last moment.

And now everything is set for the finish. Effort will be made to have all the votes certified, the count is together disposed of and the prizes awarded and the announcement of the same made in Monday's paper.

The finish is in the hands of the candidates and their friends. Persons who have been watching the campaign with interest who have friends in nomination, and who would like to vote for them must do it before nine o'clock.

This is the last work: The contest closes at 9 o'clock tonight.

Saneness Punished.
Whosoever of mortals is of base nature, him the gods chastise.—Euripides.

VANDERBILT SAILS SUDDENLY.
Dissatisfied with Fulton Celebration Program, He Goes to Europe.

New York, Sept. 4.—Cornelius Vanderbilt, becoming dissatisfied, it is said, with the Fulton celebration program, sailed for Europe suddenly on his foreign built yacht, the North Star. He made no explanation to the Fulton commission.

It is believed he must have been greatly aggravated, because he failed to sail with American flag. The North Star will take on coal at a port in Nova Scotia.

With Mr. Vanderbilt was his lawyer and a personal friend, Mrs. Vanderbilt and their children are at Bad Nauheim in Germany.

Slayer Caught After Long Chase.
Troy, Ala., Sept. 4.—Chased across two counties by two sheriffs, several deputies and a large posse of citizens, with the fear of being lynched if captured, William Stevenson, who shot and killed his step-daughter, Miss Gertrude Yarn, and seriously wounded his divorced wife, near Grady, Montgomery county, was captured and lodged in jail where he is guarded by militia.

CREATING MUCH TALK AND GREAT PRAISE.

SURPRISING GOOD BEING DONE IN THIS LOCALITY.

It seems that everybody is talking about Root Jule these days. The new medicine must have some powerful merit or so many local people would not be so enthusiastic in its use.

When the scientist was here he said, "The reason so many people get well after taking Root Jule a few weeks is that the Jule contains in proper proportion the most soothing, healing and strengthening ingredients for the stomach, bowels, bladder, liver and kidneys known to the scientific world, by making the blood-making and blood-filtering organs healthy. Root Jule removes many ailments." The great remedy within the last few months has made so many remarkable cures in Indiana and Ohio that it is not surprising that so many of our people are buying it. It seems to be wonderful for every trouble of the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys and has proved its remarkable merits to scores of people here in Janesville for bloating, belching, constipation, sick headache and other evils of bad digestion. In pneumonia and kidney troubles, as well as in all the ailments of the digestive system, it is surprising how fast health is recovered under the Jule treatment.

The people at the Reliable Drug Co.'s drug store are well informed in relation to the merits of the remedy and have a very pleasant way in letting you know of it. Many that took one bottle have returned for more and said that Root Jule is the most wonderful medicine on earth. It is sold under the demonstration period for $1 a bottle or three bottles for $2.50.

Find Serum for Cholera.
Paris, Sept. 4.—Serum and vaccine for the treatment of cholera has been discovered by the Italian doctor, Salambini, working under the direction of Prof. Metchnikoff and Dr. Pierre Roux of the Pasteur Institute. The serum has been tried in Russia in desperate cases and reduced the death rate.

Weather Chief Suffers Broken Arm.
Washington, Sept. 4.—While alighting from a car Prof. Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, fell and broke his left arm. He was conveyed to the office of a physician, where the injured member was set, and then Prof. Moore proceeded to his own office, where he performed his customary duties.

BALLINGER ANGRY; BACK TO CAPITAL

"I'LL KILL SOME SNAKES," SAYS TAFT'S SECRETARY OF INTERIOR.

SENSATION IS PROMISED

Significant Remark Made by Cabinet Officer When He Is Questioned About Row with Chief Forester Pinchot Over Water Power.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, who hurriedly returned to the capital from the west, is angry. "I intend to kill some snakes," he declares.

The remark was made in response to questions relative to the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy regarding water power plants, the Cunningham Alaska coal entries and other conservation matters. The illustration used by the secretary was drawn from an incident in his own life when, some twenty-odd years ago, as a cowboy at Medicine Lodge, Kan., he found the night camp infested with "rattlers."

He then said: "Boys, before I sleep I propose to kill some snakes." He did kill about a dozen of the reptiles before stretching his blanket over the buffalo grass for a night's rest.

"Going to Kill Some Snakes," Mr. Ballinger refused to explain the purport of his remark and declined to further discuss the matters in controversy between his department and the forestry bureau.

"Manifestly," he said, "it would be improper for me to talk on the subject. The heads of the various divisions of the department which are involved in this controversy have all prepared their reports, and I expect to submit the whole question to the president at an early day. I could not, therefore, properly go into the subject at this time further than to say that my previous knowledge of the situation, together with the information I have derived today from the personal reports of Messrs. Pierce, Bennett and Schwartz, justifies the statement that this department has nothing to fear from the official scrutiny of the conduct of its officers. Incidentally, I am going to kill some snakes."

Going to See President.
Mr. Ballinger said that he did not know just when he would go to Beverly, but presumed that he would be there early next week. He spent much of the day in conference with Assistant Secretary Pierce, Commissioner Bennett, Mr. Schwartz and Assistant Attorney General Lawler. The remainder of the time was given to the reading of the reports of his subordinates.

Mr. Ballinger intimated that he might prepare a report of his own for the public, but said that his course in that respect would depend entirely upon the wishes of the president. He had no doubt, however, that a full statement of the entire matter would be given to the public at an early day.

UNVEIL INDIAN MONUMENT.
Eviction of the Menominee Band from Indiana Is Commemorated.

Switz Lake, Ind., Sept. 4.—The eviction in 1828 of the Menominee band of Potawatomi Indians by the government was commemorated today by the unveiling of a monument at this place, which is near the center of the former reservation from which the red men were so unjustly driven by soldiers.

This is the seventy-first anniversary of the eviction, and the shaft was unveiled by a granddaughter of the late Potawatomi chief, Pokagon, of Hartford, Mich.

The monument consists of a pedestal of barre granite ten feet high, supporting a statue seven feet high of an Indian chieftain in ceremonial dress. It bears the following inscription:

"In memory of Chief Menominee and his band of 850 Potawatomi Indians, removed from this reservation September 4, 1828, by a company of soldiers under the command of Gen. John Tipton, authorized by governor David Wallace."

The movement which resulted in the erection of this monument was inaugurated and directed by Daniel McDonald, editor of the Plymouth (Ind.) Democrat, who has been a student of the Indian history and legendry of Indiana for many years, and in 1905, while a member of the legislature, introduced a bill for an appropriation for this purpose. After many discouragements the bill became a law March 12, 1907, a commission was appointed to carry out the plan and a contract for the construction of the monument was awarded.

Misery in Head
"I had misery in my head, was irritable—wretched. A druggist recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine. From the first I improved, and I continued until I was entirely well again." MISS VIOLA BAKER, Orange, Texas.

If you are subject to headache, backache, neuralgia, epilepsy, weak stomach—the chances are your nervous system is run down. All the organs get their energy from the nerves, and when they are out of order, it is because you lack nerve force.

Dr. Miles' Nervine restores nervous energy and consequently strengthens the action of the organs.

The first bottle will benefit; if not, your druggist will return your money.

POSSE HUNTS TRAIN BANDIT WHO HAS TURNED FOOTPAD

Man and Wife Held Up Near Scene of Express Robbery by Hatless Highwayman.

Lewistown, Pa., Sept. 4.—The lone bandit who held up the Pennsylvania express train Tuesday morning, and stole among other things, 10,000 Lincoln pennies, is believed to have turned footpad. Scores of detectives are searching for him and a report that he is insane, has caused fear among the people.

Robert E. Little, a prominent citizen of Lewistown, while driving with his wife and child along a lonely road three miles south of here early last evening was stopped by a masked man and robbed of $10 and a gold watch. Following so closely on the express train robbery and occurring in the same range of mountains, opinion prevails here that the hold-up was the work of the same man.

The robbery was committed at a place known as Doe trough, a lonely spot along the mountain road high above the banks of the Juniata river. The robber was disguised with a burly mask and wore a light wig beneath which traces of black curly hair showed. As in the hold-up of the express train, the bandit spoke with a foreign accent. Other details in his description correspond to that given for the train robber.

The robber took Mr. Little's hat. The hat worn by the man who robbed the train is in the possession of detectives and the fact that the highwayman who robbed Little wore no hat convinces the detectives that one man did both jobs.

Superintendent C. A. Preston of the middle division of the Pennsylvania railroad said he is confident the robber is insane and predicts his capture in a few hours.

SAYS WHITE PLAGUE INCREASES.
Nathan Straus Declares the Disease Is Gaining Ground.

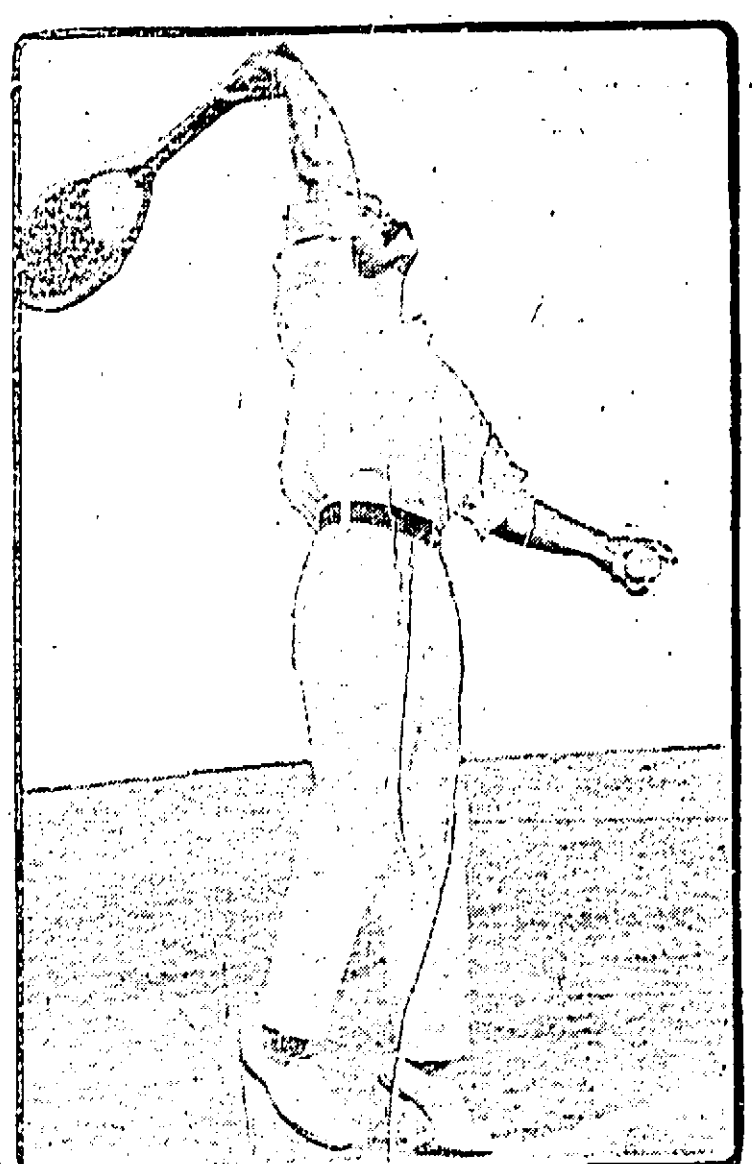

Hudspet, Sept. 4.—Nathan Straus, the New York philanthropist, who on Tuesday appended to the International Medical congress to stop the spread of disease that results from the use of infected milk, today submitted detailed figures to that body to prove that tuberculosis, instead of being conquered, is on the increase.

He cited the official vital statistics of New York city, which was credited by Dr. Robert Koch with leading the whole world in the fight against tuberculosis. He showed that the increasing skill of the physicians in treating tuberculosis had reduced the death rate from this disease in proportion to the population from 2.42 per 1,000 in 1902 to 2.39 per 1,000 in 1907, and 2.29 in 1908, but he showed that the number of deaths from tuberculosis in proportion to the total number of deaths from all causes had increased from 13.04 per cent. in 1902 to 13.90 in 1908.

Mr. Straus said: "The population of New York has increased 26 per cent. since 1902, while the number of new cases of tuberculosis reported in a year has increased 100 per cent. Growth of the city has added 932,291 to the population, while the spread of tuberculosis has added 144,172 to the army of consumptives, until the vast resources of the great metropolis are taxed to the utmost to care for those victims of the great white plague."

Killed in Moving a Parsonage.

ENGLISH TENNIS CHAMPION COMING TO UNITED STATES. A. W. GORE.

By sending her champion, A. W. Gore, to play in the preliminary trials for the Davis cup team at Philadelphia Sept. 11, England has paid the United States a compliment, but the other two members of the team, L. H. Escombe and A. E. Crawley are not as representative of the game of lawn tennis across the water as follows. Nevertheless, Escombe may be out to be much stronger on the Gormantown courts than expected, just as Parkie did at Longwood last year, J. G. Ritchie, who was here last year went through the tournament at Wimbledon, but was defeated by the holder of the All-England title, A. W. Gore.

To defend and win the title of All-England champion naturally can be depended upon to pick the places Gore as a player of the very first rank, though he has never been accused of either originality or of over-brilliance. He has a very hard and fine drive which overwhelms his opponents. He can send them buzzing down the side lines with extraordinary force and accuracy. Nothing out of the ordinary marks his service, but he can be depended upon to return the service of his opponent. When he volleys there is nothing shows about his stroke, but anything shoulder high he smashes with a tremendous force. But he belongs also to the back court school. So that the Davis cup matches at Philadelphia promises to be certainly as great interest as they were last year at Longwood and the committee can be depended upon to pick the places Gore as a player of the very first rank, though he has never been accused of either originality or of over-brilliance. SUNDAY SCHOOL IS DECREASING IN SIZE

Bishop McDowell Says at Monroe Conference

Methodists Have Lost 300

In Past Ten Years.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Monroe, Wis., Sept. 4.—Bishop W.

F. McDowell took the members of the West Wisconsin M. E. conference to task yesterday in an address in which he pointed to the decrease in the Methodist Sunday school attendance in the state, which had fallen off 300 in ten years. With 800,000 children in the state only 34,000 are members of Methodist Sunday schools. He said it was evident that pastors were not living up to their places and were not giving enough attention to an important part of their duties. He urged the pastors, upon returning to their charges, to make it a point to instruct the children, preach to the children as well as to the adults, and if anything else the children the preference.

Not only preach to the children, but instruct them, said the bishop.

A class of six were presented for full admission into the conference and

Bishop McDowell delivered his address to them at a joint session of the conference and laymen.

It is expected there will be a great number of changes in the conference assignments, but nothing definite is known. Bishop McDowell admonished the pastors to think less of appointments and more about getting ready for a big year wherever the men are sent.

Ball Game

Monroe lost to Blanchardville in the ball game played yesterday afternoon at Argyle for a purse of $125, the winner to take all. Both teams were leaded to win and keen rivalry between the teams marked the game. Monroe had five players from the Glenside team, the fastest in northern Illinois.

Blanchardville had two home players,

one from Freeport and the balance from Chicago. An immense crowd witnessed the game. D. H. Hixson

ROCK COUNTY FAIR

CLOSED YESTERDAY

Yesterday Last Day of Exhibit at Evansville—No Races on Account of Heavy Track.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Evansville, Sept. 3.—The eleventh annual Rock county fair closed today and notwithstanding the muddy condition of the roads and the threatening sky the attendance was good and every way the best ever held here and although the management have not as yet compiled definite figures there is every reason to believe that there will be a good surplus when all bills are paid. The rain of last night left the track so wet that the race program for today was called off, and while it was a great disappointment to many, a ball game between the Foot-ville White Sox and the Chicago

Glants furnished amusement for the afternoon. The game was good and from beginning to end excitement ran high. In the first part of the game

Footville took the lead and the Glants being the score stood 5 to 1 in their favor. At this point the Glants went up and played fast and force and took the game by a score of 6 to

5. Each side got seven hits. Foot-ville made three errors and the Glants

one. While Footville lost they put up a good strong game. Roy Broughton starred at batting. Batteries for Foot-ville were Broughton and Freeman.

Umpire—Dorner Newman of Broadland. W. H. Chilton of Harvard, Ill.,

who owned one of the horses entered in the races, bought the fancy driving team that took first premium. The team was owned by Burton and Man-cock of Albany. It is said that the horses brought them five hundred dollars. Mr. Chilton also purchased a span of Shetland ponies.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

THE highest kind of courage, I think, is the courage that dares to be afraid.

At the time of the great Chelsea fire I happened to be stopping in Boston. At one o'clock that night when the fire had mostly yielded, leaving a scene of desolation and wreckage that no one, who has not seen something similar, can imagine, I went with a party of newspaper people into that city of dreadful night.

From the point on the edge of the burned district where the automobile dropped us, we started to try and make our way on foot into the very burned-out heart of the city. Fire-shaken buildings were still falling. Now and then directly in our path we found beds of ashes that concealed red hot furnaces. Huge trolley and telephone wires, that might or might not be filled with the deadliest power, writhed across the street.

Death was on every side. None but those whose duty absolutely demanded it had a right to bask in that dreadful place.

We thought we were brave to attempt it just for the excitement of the thing.

But it was the man who turned back that was really brave.

"I'm going to get out of here," he cried briefly, as a huge chimney with a spout of flame, toppled and fell, scattering bricks within a few feet of us.

At the time we looked askance at him. But the next morning when the frenzy of excitement was past, we all acknowledged that he had shown far greater courage than ours—the courage that was not afraid of being called

"Excepting what the business was," Margaret said incredulously. "The business was an uncut stone, answered Logotheti with indifference. He had one to sell, and I bought it. He was recommended to me by a man in Constantinople. He came to Mar- nelli on a French steamer with two Greek merchants who were coming to Paris, and they brought him to my door. That is the whole story. And here is the ruby. I bought it for you, because you like those things. Will you take it?"

He held out what looked like a little ball of white tissue paper, but Margaret turned her face from him. "You treat me like a child!" she said.

To her own great surprise and indignation, her voice was unsteady and she felt something burning in her eyes. She was almost frightened at the thought that she might be going to cry, out of sheer mortification.

Logotheti said nothing for a moment. He began to untroll the paper from the precious stone, but changed his mind, wrapped it up again, and put it back into his watch-pocket before he spoke.

"I did not mean it as you think," he said softly.

She turned her eyes without moving her head, till she could just see that he was leaning forward, resting his wrists on his knees, bending his head and apparently looking down at his loosely hanging hands. His attitude expressed dejection and disappointment. She was glad of it. He had no right to think that he could make her as angry as she still was, angry even to tears, and then bring her to smile again when she was tired of teasing her. Her eyes turned away again, and she did not answer him.

"I make mistakes sometimes," he said, speaking still lower. "I know I do. When I am with you I cannot be always thinking of what I say. It's too much to ask, when a man is as far gone as I am!"

"I should like to believe that," Margaret said, without looking at him. "Is it hard to believe?" he asked gently that she only just heard the words.

"You don't make it easy, you know," she said with a little defiance, for she felt that she was going to yield before long.

"I don't know how to. You're not in the least capricious—and yet—"

"You're mistaken," Margaret answered, turning to him suddenly. "I'm the most capricious woman in the world! Yesterday I wrote a long letter to a friend, and then I suddenly tore it up—there were over so many pages! I drossy that if I had written just the same letter this morning I should have sent it. If that is not caprice, what is it?"

"It may have been wisdom to tear it up," Logotheti suggested.

"I'm not sure. I never ask myself questions about what I do. I hate people who are always measuring their wretched little souls and then tinkering their consciences to make them fit! I don't believe I wish to do anything really wrong, and so I do exactly what I like, always!"

"If you will only go on doing what you like," Logotheti answered, "it will give me the greatest pleasure in the world to help you. I only ask one kindness."

"You have no right to ask me anything today. You've been quiet the most disagreeable person this afternoon that I ever met in my life."

"I know I have," Logotheti answered with admirable contrition. "I'll wait a day or two before I ask anything; perhaps you will have forgiven me by that time."

"I'm not sure. What was the thing you were going to ask?"

He was silent now that she wished to know his thought.

"Have you forgotten it already?" she inquired with a little laugh that was encouraging rather than contemptuous, for her curiosity was roused.

They looked at each other at last, and all at once she felt the deeply disturbing sense of his near presence which she had missed for three days, though she was secretly a little afraid of him.

"Those Who Do Things"

The men and women of today who do things must be strong, healthy, active. Their blood must be pure and rich, their nerve force strong and perfectly balanced, their brains clear. In short, they must maintain vim, vigor and vitality in every function of life.

each of 'em say 'truly rural' and 'British Constitution' before he goes to bed, and if he can't, you just unhelm him, or whatever you call it on a boat. Understand, captain?"

"The captain understood and kept his countenance."

"Now, I want to know one thing," continued the new owner. "What's the nearest sea port to Hayreuth, Bavaria?"

"Venice," answered the captain without the least hesitation, and so quickly that Mr. Van Torp was immediately suspicious.

"If that's so, you're pretty smart," he observed.

"You can telephone to Cook's office, sir, and ask them," said the captain quietly.

The instrument was on the table at Mr. Van Torp's elbow. He looked sharply at the captain, as he unhooked the receiver and set it to his ear. In a few seconds communication was given.

"Cook's office? Yes, Yes. This is Mr. Van Torp, Rufus Van Torp of New York. Yes, I want to know what's the nearest sea port to Hayreuth, Bavaria. Yes, Yes. That's just what I want to know. Yes, I'll hold the wire while you look it up."

He was not kept waiting long.

"Venice, you say? You're sure you're right, I suppose? Yes, Yes, I was only asking. No thank you. If I want a ticket I'll look in myself. Much obliged. Good-by."

He hung the receiver in its place again, and turned to his captain with a different expression, in which admiration and satisfaction were quite apparent.

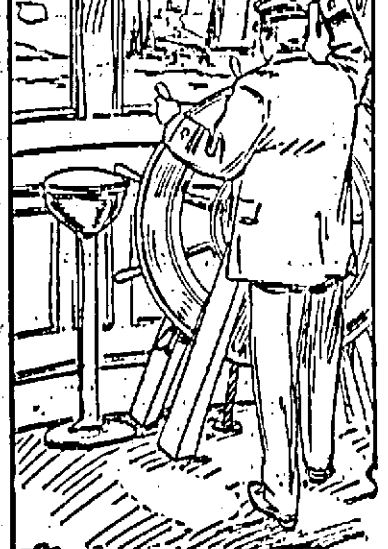

"Well," he said, "you're right. It's Venice. I must say that, for an Englishman, you're quite smart."

The captain smiled quietly, but did not think it worth while to explain that the last owner with whom he had sailed had been Wagner-mad and had gone to Hayreuth regularly. Moreover, he had judged his man already.

"Am I to proceed to Venice at once, sir?" he asked.

"As quick as you can, captain."

The Englishman looked at his watch deliberately, and made a short mental calculation before he said anything. It was 11 in the morning.

"I can get to sea by five o'clock this afternoon, sir. Will that do?"

"Mr. Van Torp was careful not to betray the least surprise."

"Yes," he said, as if he were not more than fairly satisfied, "that'll do nicely."

"Very well, sir, then I'll be off. It's about 3,000 miles, and she's supposed to do that at 18 knots with her own coal. Say, eight days. But as this is her maiden trip we must make allowance for having to stop the engines once or twice. Good-morning, sir."

"Good-day, captain. Get in some coal and provisions as soon as you arrive in Venice. I may want to go to Timbuctoo, or to Andaman Islands or something. I'm that sort of a man. I'm not sure where I'll go. Good-by."

The captain stopped at the first telegraph office on his way to the Waterloo station and telegraphed both to his chief engineer, Mr. McCosh, and his chief mate, Mr. Johnson, for he thought it barely possible that one or the other might be ashore.

Seventy Years Old.
Rheumatism and neuralgia yield their pain to Perry Davis' Painkiller—so do sprains, burns, bruises. It cures colds, colic, diarrhoea. For seventy years it has been doing good. It's used everywhere and is saved and danger avoided. A 35 cent bottle is the best size; but a 60 cent bottle is really the cheapest—it holds so much more.

WAS NOT SPYING, SAYS CAPT. BAGGIO

COMMANDER OF SCHOOL SHIP DECLARES STORY OF ALLEGED IMPROPRIETY UNTRUE.

JUST STOPPED TO SALUTE

Regret Expressed in Washington Over Report That Italian Cruiser Had Offered Affront to American Fleet at Target Practice.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 4.—Following the denial by Capt. Filippo Baggio, commander of the Italian schoolship Aetna, that he had not attempted to spy on the American fleet while it was at target practice off Cape Henry, it is said there will be no clash between the United States and Italy.

Capt. Baggio is much chagrined over the position in which he has been placed by the reports and expressed the belief that they could not have originated with the American naval officers with the fleet. He said he changed the course of his ship when he saw the fleet in order to salute it, and as the Americans were slow in answering, he said, he slowed down so that the flagship might return the salute before he had passed.

Captain is Chagrined.
Capt. Baggio said: "We came to Baltimore from Bermuda, and I beg to state that it was not known there that the American fleet was engaged in target practice off Cape Henry. As we approached the capes we saw the fleet and naturally changed our course, a trifling one, in order to salute it, and as the Americans were slow in answering, he said, he slowed down so that the flagship might return the salute before he had passed."

"When we approached the fleet we, of course, saw at once that it was engaged in target practice, but at that time none of the vessels were firing. We saluted, and as the Americans were slow in answering we rang down to half speed in order that the American flagship might return the salute before we had passed by the fleet."

"When the flagship returned the salute we steamed full speed ahead and proceeded to Baltimore. That our action should be taken amiss causes me much regret."

"It would be foolish to say that we spied upon the fleet. There was nothing to spy upon at the time."

Regret in Washington.

Washington, Sept. 4.—General regret is expressed in administration circles over the publication ascribing improper motives to the commander of Italian cruiser Aetna, which, on Saturday morning last, is reported to have steamed between the ships of the Atlantic battleship fleet engaged in target practice off the Virginia capes.

The naval officers say that the ship was on her way to an American port and that if she slowed up as reported when approaching the fleet it was in all probability because of her intention to pass in at the capes and make port. If any affront was given, the naval officers say, it was entirely unintentional and not a studied effort on the part of the Italian commander.

LAWYER HELD AS KIDNAPER.

David Gregg of Topeka Arrested in Incubator Baby Case.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 4.—David Gregg, a Topeka lawyer, was arrested on a charge of being one of the principals in the kidnapping of Marlin Hensley, and an accessory to the assault on Clarence Belknap, who defended the little girl.

The police declare he called up Capt. F. H. Tillotson in Kansas City and told them of the escape of the kidnapers from this city and that he was with the kidnapers' carriage when they arrived with the child.

Capt. Tillotson came here from Kansas City, gave himself up and was released on $5,000 bail. Witnesses say he is the man who held the horse with which Mrs. Stella Barclay of Buffalo and J. M. Gentry, the kidnapers, made the first part of their journey.

EXPLOSIVE IN SHIP'S COAL.
British Admiralty Suspects Plot to Destroy the Cruiser Forward.

London, Sept. 4.—The admiralty office is excited over the latest discovery of a great amount of high explosive in the coal bunkers of the cruiser Forward, one of the crack fighters of the navy.

Three similar discoveries have been made in the coal bunkers of other vessels, and the secret investigation which was at once instituted proved that the detonators found with the explosives were not similar to those used in coal mines, disproving the theory that the explosives had been accidentally left in the coal at the mines.

400 Passengers in Paris.
Portsmouth, Sept. 4.—There was an exciting scene at the mouth of Portsmouth harbor when the steamer Duchess of Kent was run down by a government transport. There were 400 passengers on board the Duchess of Kent, and immediately after the collision she began to fill rapidly. The captain headed her for the shore and she was promptly beached. All the passengers got ashore safely.

Strike Threatened by 20,000.
New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 4.—A general strike of the 20,000 cotton mill operatives in this city is threatened as a result of the refusal of the manufacturers to restore a ten per cent. cut in wages, made in March, 1908.

The man who stands between the most serious strike of recent years in Chicago and peace.

Chicago.—Unless "Big Bill" Mahon, international president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees, is able to bring about a satisfactory settlement of the present street car troubles here nothing will prevent a complete stoppage of all Chicago's transportation lines. It was thought for a time that the affair had been patched up satisfactorily to both employers and employees but the terms of agreement have been rejected by the street car men and now only arbitration, should this be acceptable, can prevent a strike.

Mahon holds the key to the situation. From persons with whom he is in touch it was learned he hopes to heal the reopened wound by the avoidance of arbitration but such a plan seems almost beyond possibility. As head of the Employees' association he can wield a remarkable influence either for or against a general strike.

AMERICAN CONSULS SHIFTED.

Taft Makes Changes in Representatives of United States.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Stuart K. Lupton of Tennessee, who was vice-consul at Messina at the time of the earthquake last winter, has been transferred from the consulate at Catania, Italy, to consul at Karachi, India. Other consular changes made by President Taft are as follows:

Thomas Sammons, Washington, from consul general at Yokohama, Japan, to consul general at Seoul, Korea; Samuel S. Klabschue, Ohio, from consul at Belfast, Ireland, to consul general at Tientsin, China; Henry H. Miller, Oregon, from consul general at Yokohama to consul at Belfast, Ireland; Southard P. Warner, Maryland, from Leipzig, Germany, to Bahia, Brazil; Jay White, Michigan, from consul general at Bogota to consul at Santos, Brazil, and Wallace C. Bond, Wyoming, from consul at Karachi, India, to consul general at Copenhagen, Denmark.

PRINCE INVITES ROOSEVELT.

Abyssinian Throne's Heir Offers a White Elephant Hunt.

Berlin, Sept. 4.—Lidji Jossan, the crown prince of Abyssinia, has invited Theodore Roosevelt to a great elephant hunt, promising to beat up a white elephant for him to kill, and otherwise to arrange a splendid sporting program.

This news has been brought into Berlin by Adolph Mayer, a kinsman of King Menelik of Abyssinia, who has arrived here with a commission from the Abyssinian government to purchase supplies.

King Menelik sent an invitation to Mr. Roosevelt at Washington to be his guest, but Mr. Roosevelt declined, explaining that as he had refused the invitations of several European sovereigns he could not make an exception of King Menelik; however, much he might desire to do so.

It was then arranged that the crown prince should invite Mr. Roosevelt unofficially.
